0. BACKGROUND

- 0.1 Accreditation is fundamental to the proper operation of a transparent and quality driven conformity assessment market in Europe. It is a service offered to manufacturing and service industries, which supports their competitiveness. It is fundamental to the public authorities, whether national or European, in order to obtain the proper level of confidence in the reports and certificates issued anywhere in Europe and thus to facilitate the free movement of products and services throughout the European Economic Area. It is fundamental to the conformity assessment bodies themselves, whether operating in the regulated or in the non regulated fields of activity, in order to help them demonstrate independently their technical competence, impartiality and integrity and to ensure transparent and quality driven competition between themselves.
- 0.2 The national accreditation bodies in Europe have organised themselves in the European Co-operation for Accreditation (EA), [which has been recognized as the European Accreditation Infrastructure pursuant to the provisions of EC Regulation 765/2008]. EA aims at building and maintaining mutual confidence in the accreditation schemes operated by its members. It does so with the objective of ensuring that the testing, calibration, certification and inspection services concerned meet the needs of industry and of the public authorities and of all other interested parties. In order for EA to respond and be responsible to the needs of its stakeholders, and to ensure transparency in accreditation, a mechanism whereby EA is answerable to and can receive input from its stakeholders is essential.
- 0.3 The EA Advisory Board constitutes the primary organ within EA to ensure the effective and balanced involvement of all interested parties in European accreditation regarding policy and strategy issues, and shall serve as the main stakeholder forum for EA to deal with such issues, pursuant to the requirements of Regulation (EC)

765/2008 and to the relevant provisions of the “General Guidelines for Co-operation between EA and the EC, EFTA and the competent national authorities”.

- 0.4 Other means and procedures of involvement of stakeholders in EA activities are specified in the EA policy document for relations with stakeholders.

1. MISSION STATEMENT – OBJECTIVE

- 1.1 The EA Advisory Board, hereinafter called the Board, shall constitute an independent organ, composed of balanced representations of the stakeholders to which EA accounts for the independence, technical competence, cost effectiveness, impartiality and integrity of its accreditation and related activities. It shall attempt to serve their needs without impinging on their respective responsibilities.
